

SCOTIA GRENDDEL PRODUCTIONS

Scotia News for October

Well, it looks like winter is just around the corner up here in Scotland, as the temperature begins to drop. Which will mean more time spent indoors painting models and playing games. So, no changes for us here at Scotia, then! On that note, we have some models and some gaming background info to keep you all going....

Campaign Setting

Ian Baker (known on the forum as Qalpha) has sent several pdf files to us via email which provide a detailed setting for anyone wishing to run a campaign. There are no rules or scenarios as such, since Ian's vision is very much a free-form setting that can be used with any game you wish. We're going to start you off with an introduction from the man himself, an overview of the main planet involved and a little bit about a potential military protagonist. The files can be found here. As time goes on, we'll add more articles regarding specific forces/doctrines and so on. Basically, if there's enough interest, Ian has said he will keep adding to the setting. So don't be shy about telling us what you think.

For our part, Jon has decided that he would like to dip his toe into the dark waters of campaign play using the Void 1.1 rule system, against his long-time gaming nemesis, Deke (known on the forum as Frank Xerox), and they have been joined by other forum members (including Qalpha himself). A board has been created to document the building of armies and any campaign games played on the Scotia forum here. Why not check it out, and maybe add some comments, or throw your own hat into the ring?

Void Releases

Jon's been digging through the Void moulds, and has decided that we should put the VASA GSX900 bikes and the Hero & Leander bike and sidecar up on the webstore. Is it a coincidence that he is collecting a VASA force for the campaign, and "just happens" to think these would make a nice re-release?

Fantasy Range

This month, we have some more Corsairs for sale. This time, armed with spears, no doubt useful when repelling boarders. These chaps fit in nicely with the archer models previously released, with their conch shell helmets tying the two units in visually.
